

Brief Description of the Program

Profession

Philosophy is one of the most ancient sciences. Since its inception in the 7-6th centuries BC, it has inherited the entire volume of positive knowledge, which for thousands of years has accumulated humanity. "Love of wisdom," as the word "philosophy" is literally translated from Greek, takes a huge place in our life. A profound study of the diversity of philosophical views, their emergence, development, dependence on the specific socio-political conditions of the time and place of origin is the basis for the professional preparation of undergraduates in the area of study "Philosophy".

Educational process

In the course of study students acquire modern knowledge in history of the world philosophical thought, as well as analytical approaches and methods for historical and philosophical research. This program forms the scientific foundations of the world outlook and value orientations, expands the research toolkit of specialists in socio-humanitarian sphere. Graduates of the master's degree program get necessary skills (structural character of thinking, ability to speak correctly, work with texts, foreign language skills, etc.) for mastering the modern communicative space that dominates and is present today in various spheres of society and culture, including science, religion, politics, art, business, mass media and power structures.

Disciplines

- √ History of foreign philosophy,
- √ Historical and philosophical comparativistics,
- √ Modern problems of philosophy,
- √ The latest trends of foreign philosophy,
- √ The problem of man in Western philosophy

Practical training

Students undergo practical training in research organizations, institutions of higher education in Russia and abroad, in editorial offices of the mass media, museums and libraries, and government bodies.

Career

Philosophical education provides fundamental training in the humanities, whose further development and area of application largely depends on your choice. A graduate of this master's degree program, who successfully completed the course, can work as a teacher in educational organizations, continue their research doing a PhD program, go into politics, work in the editorial offices of the media, in cultural sector (museums, libraries, exhibitions) or become a manager .