

Brief Description of the Program

Jobs

A specialist in information security in law enforcement prevents realization of internal and external threats that have destructive effects on information systems and facilities responsible for the national and economic security of the country.

Educational Process

We focus heavily on the practical element of IT security, and we back that up with the distinctive facilities we have available to use, including a dedicated, self-contained centers, with its own private internal network, containing some of the latest technical equipment and software. We have access to external specialists from the Police and IT industry both for guest lectures and sessions. The version of technical equipment and software we use in the laboratories is the version used by law enforcement.

Disciplines

- ✓ Hardware and software security
- ✓ Technical security
- ✓ Law
- ✓ Special IT in law enforcement
- ✓ Computer forensics

Practical Training

During practical training in state and commercial agencies, a student masters the following professional competencies: installation, configuration, operation and maintenance of operational components of technical information security systems; participation in special inspections and studies, certification of facilities, premises, hardware, systems, certification testing of software; administration of information security subsystems at the facility; organizational and legal support of activities for receiving, accumulating, processing, analyzing, using information and protecting information objects, information technologies and resources; development and monitoring of the effectiveness of implementation of a system of measures for the formation and use of information resources, information security systems.

Career

Graduates work in state and municipal government, financial and economic institutions, social protection, educational centers and other institutions. Graduates can work in electronic archives, specialized legal services. They can also work as experts on various types of computer expertise.